As you know, we have a process where we send out one-line updates for operations. I would like to greatly simplify these lists and get back to the original intent, which is to update exploration management regarding exploration wells. Team leaders can verbally update others who need to know as needed. But, we absolutely have to better control the information on these wells. For example, the Macondo logs were sent to many people within the SPU and company. People are naturally excited about discoveries and in the interest of working together with our development friends, we try to share information. As a result, we can lose control of the flow of information. People who don't really need the information get it, and also SPU and corporate upper management get information before top exploration management. Therefore, starting tomorrow, the daily one-line updates should go only to the following people:

Dave Rainey

Pete Zwart

Jay Thorseth

Cindy Yeliding

Pinky Vinson

The TL working the prospect

Any information regarding shows, pay, etc should only be shared with exploration management and the team drilling the well. If someone else needs the information, then it should be signed off by me.

If people complain, please send questions my way. I'm happy to talk with them.

Thanks,

Jay
