Mark,
Do you have the detailed breakdown of the costs? What I think they are looking for is to see if there is any standby time included (from when the Marianas was docked). Should not be a problem providing detail on our pre-drill estimates. If we can provide this information it may not be necessary to have a phone call with them. If we need a call, I will set it up as a conference call and be sure to let them know we will only discuss pre-drill issues.

Give me a ring if you have any questions.

Thanks,
Mike

It is not customary to give them much detail. Past exploration wells have had all comms with partners go thru land dept.

Will do. You know the drill. Be advised that they have not executed anything yet; hence, could still walk away from the deal.

Mark,
Assume you would be the best one to bring in on a phone call? Or better yet, can you provide them a breakdown of the costs? Of course, it would be all pre-drill. Maybe we can get ahead of some of their questions.

Thanks,
Mike

Thanks Mike, I'll send it around.

Does BP not have a detailed cost breakdown representing how the cost of 96.1MM is derived? Could you provide me a name a number of BP's drilling contact because I know we're going to have questions from our drilling group?

Thanks,
